IGF 2021 BPF Gender and Digital Rights

The new BPF Gender and Digital Rights started in 2021 exploring the concept of gendered disinformation.

As the phenomenon of disinformation advances, it gains nuances and levels of complexity. In the current context, it is timely to explore the concept of gendered disinformation, its relation with online gender-based violence and hate speech, as well as its immediate effects on women and gender-diverse groups' existence online and their freedom of expression.

The BPF can build on the work the BPF Gender and Access (2014-2020).

Envisaged goals and deliverables

- Understand how gender-based disinformation has been deployed as a strategy against women and gender-diverse groups.
- Understand how the negative effects on digital rights spill over to other sets of rights, such as political participation, what allows gendered disinformation to be used as part of larger political projects of moral policing, censorship, and hierarchisation of citizenship and rights.
- Map strategies and actions to halt the spread of gendered disinformation and build a less toxic environment for female and gender-diverse groups online.
- Showcase positive initiatives that set the beginning of what can be a long term multistakeholder dialogue on gendered disinformation.

Update on the BPF activities

Learning sessions

The BPF hosted a series of expert and stakeholder discussions to explore the topic of gendered disinformation and to identify what BPF output would be a useful contribution to the debate without duplicating work done elsewhere.

A comprehensive Summary Report of the BPF learnings sessions on the concept of gendered disinformation is published on the BPF webpage (direct link https://www.intgovforum.org/multilingual/filedepot_download/5004/2636)
